NORWAY AND VICINITY.
Norway, St. Hebron, I.
The Radcliffe opened their base ball season Saturday afternoon, at the fair grounds with a game between the Radcliffe and Hebron town team. The attendance was not very large. The teams both showed a lack of battery practice, but as this is the first game of the season it must not be expected to be perfect at first but with practice they will wax strong in their weak points.
Although one team is charged with two errors, and the other three, all the runs were the results of these misplays. An error by Harrison, a hit and a pass ball gave Hebron their run in the third. An error by Sullivan with three men on bases and two men out, was responsible for Norway's two runs in the fourth, and Cortello's error, followed by a stolen base and a hit, gave Norway their last run in the seventh. Nevils spoiled what looked like a good opening for Hebron in the ninth, calling Berce out on strikes after Sturtevant, the first man up in this inning, had reached second.

Men's Class Banquet.

On Tuesday evening the Men's Class held its first banquet at the Universalist vestry. The tables were bountifully supplied with choice things and attractive in decoration and arrangement. After the tables were cleared, C. F. Ridd served as toastmaster. He voiced the regrets of the class and of its president, James F. Deane, at Mr. Deane's inability to be present owing to the illness of his son. In behalf of the president he welcomed the guests and spoke enthusiastically of the new vigorous movement of laymen in the churches, and of the successful work of this class. Leroy R. Stoddard sang two solos. Rev. Merrill C. Ward, the teacher of the class, spoke in a happy vein of the various phases of work and of its life. He commended its special achievements and voiced the hope for its larger usefulness. All men are invited to enter heartily into the life of the class for some part of its work for the good of the Church and the community.
The toastmaster called on W. C. Leavitt for the Parish committee and on S. B. Cummings as an associate member of the class. G. L. Curtis spoke briefly. Rev. Ralph B. Connor of Auburn was the principal speaker. His theme was "The Heart of the Problem" to which the men's work in the church is directed and the method and power for its accomplishment. No brief report could do justice to this masterly address. Some of the thoughts were as follows:
Happily the strong man of to-day is taking his rightful position in the church. Best men want to do best service. Whatever we would do worthily we must do from the heart. This makes for noble life and for success. Guard the heart with all diligence for out of it are the issues of life. Christ appealed to the heart. Work for Him must be done from the heart. The pure mind, like mother love, makes strongest appeal for good. From the heart come the most beautiful and attractive qualities of life. The best managers are from the heart. So study the Bible as to the heart of the heart.
Mr. Connor's manner as a speaker is ready and forceful, and with many witty and pointed illustrations he so presented a worthy message as to win the minds and hearts of his hearers.
The remainder of the evening was passed in sociability and in singing many familiar old hymns and songs.
Those present were:
Rev. R. E. Connor, Rev. M. C. Ward, H. H. Glidden, S. W. Goodwin, E. P. Hackett, C. H. Sargent, W. M. Mann, Harlow Adkins, W. H. Eastbanks, Arthur Buxwell, F. A. Cole, F. H. Hurd, Frank Brett, G. H. One of O. B. Cummings & Sons' large work horses had a severe case of lock-jaw and had to be killed. He became so violent that it was not safe to keep him, and expert authority said the horse would not recover. This was a well mated pair and they were probably worth $500 or more.

Norman Snell, who is making a few weeks' enforced visit at the County building at South Paris, was in Norway recently in the company of his host and while here made a trade with Ellsworth Young of the Elm House for the sale of his hens. The hen house on Deering street that has come into prominence of late, being one of the places where Mr. Snell, the proprietor of the hen business, is said to deal in "wet business," was rented to the new proprietor of the hens, Mr. Young. Now, when Mr. Snell went suddenly to South Paris, the hens had no one to look after them but deputy sheriff W. A. Bicknell and the aged owner made an arrangement whereby Mr. Bicknell was to care for the hens, and as they were a superior lot of well bred biddies Mr. Bicknell wanted to buy the hens and continue in the hen business on his own account (of course minus the side issue.) What was Mr. Bicknell's surprise when he returned from his duties at the Supreme Judicial Court at Rumford Falls to find the hens sold.

That Norway & Western as the People See It.

Twice has this railroad construction been started, and twice somebody has thrown twice in the way. And the third time it is being talked up and Mr. Seitz hastens to throw his twig. In our opinion this railroad if built from Norway to East Stoughton and South Waterford, would be of more value to the people of Norway, Waterford, Stoughton and Sweden, than all the parks that Mr. Seitz will ever own. It does not seem to us that these people, who are throwing in the towel, possibly know how the people in these towns feel about a railroad. If they did, and were public spirited men, they would put their shoulder to the wheel in room of throwing twigs.
One of the PEOPLE.

To the strains of music played by the Seneca orchestra marched in the graduating class numbering 16, led by George C. Fernald.

The junior class, made up mostly by the Senecans who did not take part in the exercises, accompanied the graduates, occupying the front seats on the floor while the graduates took seats on the stage.

The girls wore their "graduation dresses" which had been so long in construction and had been the only topic of conversation at many a gathering; while the boys wore their "best" with striking red ties.

The class motto, "Never do today what you can put off till tomorrow," was placed above the platform.

The class parts were finely presented and caused the audience no little amount of fun; the jokes and local hits came thick and fast throughout the course of the evening, which were heartily received by the appreciative audience.

The bouquets the graduates received were many and varied, including paper chrysanthemums, surrounded by Indian poke, a banana stalk with several bananas tied with green ribbon, onion tops, etc.

At the close the superintendent, Dr. D. M. Stuart, presented the diplomas in a very pleasing manner.

The class ode was sung and thus ended the long looked for, yet dreaded graduation which all, especially the audience, will long remember.

Officers: Marshall, Geo. C. Fernald; principal, Albert W. Walker; assistants Mrs. A. D. Park and Isabelle Bryant; superintendent, Dr. D. M. Stewart. Class ode:

As backward we have turned the wheels of time,
And set our feet on the path of youth again,
We've called old school-days back from out the past,
The dear old days, that were too bright to last.
With happy hearts, and faces bright,
We're young again—just for tonight.
These memories so sweet of by-gone years
Are filled with joy and pain—with smiles and tears.
And when our little hour of play is o'er,
We'll bear our burdens bravely, as before,
Then with glad hearts, and faces bright,
Let's all be young—just for tonight.

What the Kidneys Do.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

I. N. Snell, living on Cottage St., Norway, Me., says: "Prior to using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered from Doan's trouble for a long time. There was a pain through my back, almost constantly, the secretions were irregular in action and caused me great annoyance. Some few months ago Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended that I went to Stone's drug store and procured a box. Since using them I have been feeling a great deal better than before in over a year. My kidneys show more strength, are regular in action and the secretions give me but little trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Memories.

The sun was slowly sinking, "Neath the western hills so green, And the village flowing river, Amidst this gorgeous splendor, Not of loneliness or sorrow, That with loved ones I must part; But of happiness and joy, In the home I love so dear. I always want to feel the dear ones are near. They are always good and kind, To me the youngest one, And though I am the smallest, With my sister I sometimes quarrel, But those quarrels never last; And may God protect and guide us; So we can smile upon the past.

ANNE ELOISE YORKE.

Fabrics and Fashions.

The season's fashions announce themselves in an almost innumerable variety of weaves, colors and designs in an attractive display of dress fabrics, which afford a wide range of choice. Silks in soft satiny finish and with artistic designs of figures in the new spring colors
are extensively used for dresses of varied styles. Soft pliable wools, sheer supple crepes and fine veilings are desirable for the long lines which the prevailing fashion demands.

There are beautiful cotton weaves having the appearance and finish of silken fabrics. Parkhill weaves show a varied attractive line of styles in charming designs and color harmonies. They are wonderfully like silk in their beautiful soft finish, and as they prove fast color
when washed we have no question as to the advisability of selecting these lovely ginghams for our wardrobe.

Crepe serges are the new woolen weaves which are so soft and supple as to closely resemble silk and yet possess excellent wearing qualities which make them strong in popularity. Silk serge is also a favored material similar to the diagonal twill of long ago. Myer's serge is winning a foremost place by reason of its soft lustrous finish and
general good points.

None of these silken weaves, however,
can excel the fine lustrous beauty of the shawer proof quality of long ago. Myer's
serge is winning a foremost place by reason of its soft lustrous finish and
general good points.

Mohair appears this season in a variety of pleasing effects, and is receiving a most cordial welcome.

In new and original designs of distinct beauty, Cheney foulards appear in attractive variety of colorings. By reason of the shawer proof quality of these foulards they are exceptionally strong in feminine favor, for a silk which rain
does not spot and whose wearing qualities are proven and known, is just the material to choose for a handsome and serviceable costume. Another strong point is the exquisite draping qualities
of these foulard weaves which admirably commend them for the long lines
and graceful clinging effects of the Directoire modes.

Messaline with its soft lustrous texture is a favored weave for the sheath-
like costume and is in varied weights
and colorings.

All the worsted materials used for suiting are especially light and airy. Indeed, softness is the dominant quality of the season's fabrics.

Shantung is still a favorite, and is always handsome in its tan shade, although the colors of the dyed material are really beautiful. A trial bottle of Priestley weaves are of recognized high merit, and are used with eminent satisfaction in the richest and most attractive suits and costumes. They are fine and soft, and develop garments of handsome appearance and notable serviceability, representing as they do the highest standard of excellence and elegance among finest dress and suit fabrics.

"Cravenette" weaves are absolutely rain proof. A tailored suit in some of the pretty woollens is indispensable to the wardrobe. Hofmeister woollens have won a place of prominent favor,
being excellent and elegant in quality,
style and color effects, developing suits,
coats, etc., of great beauty in stylish modes.

The new fabric, crepe mohair, is attracting admiration. It is woven of "mohair and worsted" and then shrunk
on, when the "wool threads shrink more than the other," the crepe effect is produced.

Nine times in ten stomach debase-

plexion, dull eyes and thin body.

It is the stomach that supplies nourishing blood to the muscles, the healthy, plenty of nutritious matter will be absorbed by the blood. If it is not healthy, the food will ferment,

and undigested, will pass along through
the bowels, furnishing so little nutri-

Frank Kimball Announces

Kickapoo Indian Exhibition at Norway Next Week

Unique Collection of Indian Curiosities to be Shown. Free Trial Bottles of Sagawa, the Stomach Medicine, Given Away.

Frank Kimball has just announced a very unique and interesting attraction
for the patrons of his drug store. Col.
Bigelow's unique collection of Kickapoo
Indian curiosities is to be on exhibition
in his store, beginning next Wednesday, May 26. The famous Kickapoo collection, which accompanies this exhibition, is also going to be in attendance, dressed in all of his Indian finery.

In addition to the above a representative of the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Company, who has had a great deal of experience in talking with thousands of people about their various ailments,
and who has shown a very remarkable
skill in telling people exactly what ails
them, will have charge of the exhibition.

To each person who comes to this unique exhibition of Indian curiosities,
a free trial bottle of Sagawa will be presented.

The Kickapoo representative will also explain personally and individually to each caller, the Kickapoo Herb theory of Medicine.

The "Herb" theory is creating a great furore among medical men, and is turning topsy turvy many of the old notions about violent drugs. A trial bottle of Sagawa is given free for the purpose of convincing every one who will take it before two or three meals, of its remarkable efficiency in helping nature to cure certain ailments. The Kickapoo theory is that the work ought not to be done for Nature, but that when Nature is weak or played out, she ought to be assisted to do her own work. Sagawa is not a digestive, but if you have lost your appetite, or you have indigestion, or gas in the stomach, or distress after eating, or if you have any stomach trouble, or complications arising from stomach trouble,
then just these two or three doses of Sagawa before meals will restore the correctness of the Kickapoo Theories.

If you want to "enjoy one more meal,"
just call and get a trial bottle of Sagawa
and see how good your food will taste
and how much better you will digest it
by letting Sagawa prepare your stomach
for food and assist your stomach to do its work of digesting food. When the stomach does its work perfectly, then everything is right, but if your stomach fails you, then everything else seems to go back on you. All over New England, in dozens of different cities, there has been a great deal of interest in these Kickapoo demonstrations, and a great deal of talk about them. Newspapers have written whole columns about the Kickapoo Theories of Herb Medicine.

These theories have been praised and opposed according to the beliefs of individuals. Yet the theories have gained ground steadily and remarkably, until a wave of "herb medicine" faith is sweeping all over New England.

Arrangements have also been made for exhibiting the Kickapoo collection of Indian curiosities, which has created a great deal of comment wherever it has been seen. The Indian as he sits in the window and smokes his pipe of peace, is always an object of interest. One cannot help thinking, as he sits with his calm, thoughtful face, of the days of the Indian in his prime, when he endured hardships such as no other race has been able to endure, following the trail through forests in dead of winter with scant clothing, or riding for days on his tough mustang pony after the buffalo, or in war with other tribes. The Indians carried to perfection their knowledge of medicinal plants, herbs, roots, barks, etc. The man who knew most about medicinal herbs, was looked upon with the greatest awe and his knowledge was held as a part of their religion. Even today, in many parts of the country a bark which the Indians call "Sacred Bark" is always referred to by that name among almost everybody, and to this day it is the finest medicine of its kind known to modern science, and is most used by the greatest scientific manufacturers. The Indians knew all about it centuries ago,

and it has always been one of the ingredients of Kickapoo Sagawa, the stomach and liver medicine.
Kimball's Drug Store is to be congratulated upon the securing of this great attraction for his customers. Wherever this Kickapoo Demonstration has been held in other towns, the crowds who have attended it have been so great that the general business of the store, not only the sale of medicines, but the Soda

Fountain, Candy Department, Prescription Department, toilet goods—and all other departments, have greatly increased their sales.

It would be well to visit this demonstration as soon as possible, because in a few days most everybody will be talking about it, and you will want to be one of the first to know about it and to understand the Kickapoo theories of herb medicines.

Best of all is the trial bottle of Sagawa.
It is surprising how this herb medicine
corrects digestive disorders, and thereby corrects numerous other diseases. People who blame "Kidneys," "Bladder,"
"Liver," "Bowels," or other organs or think their trouble is in their "Heart"
or "Head" or "Nerves," will take Sagawa
and at once feel better; food will agree with them; the stomach will not revolt;
headaches, back aches, and internal pains will cease; nerves will quiet down.
This seems strange, but it is in reality very simple. The Sagawa prepares the stomach for digestion. The stomach in such cases is weak, worn out or diseased. The digestive juices are lacking or are not of the right quality. Hence food, when eaten, becomes as lead in the stomach;
it isn't digested. It just lies there and ferments. The fermentation generates gas and poisons which cause sourness, pains, and disorders. Sagawa, acting upon the ducts which secrete the digestive juices, causes these digestive fluids, of the right quality, to flow into the stomach in advance of the food. Then as food is eaten the stomach is ready to digest it. The digestive fluids flowing into the stomach create an appetite.
Haven't you noticed a hungry dog drule
at the mouth when jumping for a bone to gnaw? His digestive organs are so healthy and active, and his stomach
digestive juice is pouring in into his stomach
and making him so hungry that the saliva simply runs out of his mouth. Your "mouth waters" when you are hungry and see nice food. Everybody ought to be that way. Get a trial bottle of Sagawa and see how good it feels to once more be hungry and enjoy eating with no ill after effects.

Also, you can very well afford the time to look at the exhibit of Indian curiosities and observe the Indian Chief.

INQUIRIES.

By MARIE DELOGOFF.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

There were compliments, congratulations and showers of rice and slippers when Livingston Perry and Marjory Manners were wed. Some people actually said it was a love match and that the honeymoon would last for years. Only some people said that, however. Others knew it to be simply a fashionable wedding.

Not that the turtledoves do not coo when a fashionable wedding takes place, but they must coo very gently and cut it as short as possible. It is not good form for Cupid to frolic in high society.

In this case the skeptical ones soon had reason to say, "I told you so!" There were various little things that brought it about, but the principal one was that after three months of extremely conventional politeness Mr. and Mrs. Perry discovered that they were not suited to each other.

Both were full of opinion, and both were stubborn. Both were extravagant. Both felt the loss of personal freedom. Feeling thus, it was easy to find fault, and fault finding soon led to more serious things.

They declared an armed truce for another three months, and then each decided that separation was inevitable. Still, husbands and wives cannot very well separate without some reasonable excuse to give to their friends.

Marjory couldn't think of one, and Livingston was in the same predicament. Both bent their minds to the problem, and as they had plenty of time, they did it faithfully.

On the same day and almost at the same hour a bright thought struck this unhappy couple simultaneously. It was to hire somebody to investigate and find the valid excuses that were needed.

They had known each other for a year and a half previous to marriage, but, after all, that was nothing. Formality had prevented each one from even knowing what relatives the other had, outside of Marjory's match-making mamma and Livingston's rather indifferent father. Her hand had been kissed, a declaration of love made, the engagement announced, and that was the whole story of their love-making.

There must have been something in the life of each to give the other the advantage sought for. The way to discover it was through a private inquiry agency—"Inquiries made, the past investigated; secret, honorable, experienced agents, terms reasonable."

"Why, of course," thought Marjory. "Easiest thing in the world," thought Livingston. It didn't so happen that both husband and wife called for the services of the same agency, but the investigators began to work at about the same time. And while they were investigating there was a continuation of the truce between husband and wife.

It was the calm before the storm. They were so placid and pliable that at times, many times during each day, they seemed to have reached the point where they appreciated each other.

Some of their dearest friends almost feared that the couple wouldn't separate after all, and thus another choice subject for brilliant conversation would be lost to society.

After about four weeks an official looking letter was delivered to the husband at his club. He had been waiting for just such a letter, and he was so anxious to see its contents that he glanced only carelessly at the superscription.

His first surprise came a moment later, when he saw the words "Dear Madam" swimming before his eyes. Now, he was not a "dear madam," yet he went right on and read that private inquiry report to the end. He couldn't help it, though he felt that he was base.

"We find that your husband was known to have a very bad temper as far back as twenty years ago," wrote the investigator. "People who know him best are a unit in agreeing that he is very selfish by nature and hopeless in his opinions."

"Why?" demanded Mr. Perry, taken aback.

"Because—because," said she. "I'd like to do the same thing to the man who made the report about you."

And people are still commenting on how long that honeymoon has lasted and saying that neither could have done better by looking the whole world over.

"Why?" demanded Mr. Perry, taken aback.

And people are still commenting on how long that honeymoon has lasted and saying that neither could have done better by looking the whole world over.

"Why?" demanded Mr. Perry, taken aback.

"Because—because," said she. "I'd like to do the same thing to the man who made the report about you."

"His overbearing disposition," continued the report, "has alienated many friends and several relatives. In one instance, during his bachelorhood days, he nearly threw a dish at his cook and would have inflicted serious injury had he made good his threat, as there is every reason to believe he might have done."

"We have not been able to prove, but still strongly suspect, that you are not the first nor even the second nor third woman he has loved or pretended to love."

"We have it from his ex-valet that he arose several times at midnight to wander around his room or smoke cigarettes, as if greatly worried. This should be a strong point for a good lawyer to work up."

Livingston Perry felt rather flat when he had read so far. It struck him, that as seen by others, he was hardly what could be called an exciting character.

"Smokes fifteen cent cigars, drinks the most expensive wines, pays his club dues, owes no cab hire and unfortunately has not even a tailor bill over six months old. Still, this might be shown to prove extravagance," was the next thrilling remark. Then he whistled. He had at last struck an exciting paragraph. It was: "A few weeks ago he was seen in his club pouring earnestly over a work on toxicology. We are sure that in this discovery we have furnished you with a terribly strong point. Your lawyer will know at once what to do with this."

Livingston Perry did not know whether to laugh or swear when he remembered that he had tried to read the book to oblige the author, his college friend Dr. Grayson.

"We have, dear madam," ended the report, "made our investigation in the most thorough manner and have not a doubt that a court can be found that will give you a divorce on the grounds we have furnished if they are properly elaborated. Your check for $300 will greatly oblige."

Livingston Perry thrust the precious document into his pocket and decided that he was indignant and justly incensed. As he walked slowly homeward he felt an emotion that, curiously enough, was much more sorrow than anger—sorrow that Marjory should wish to get rid of him. He quite forgot for the moment that he wished to get rid of her.

The official envelope that was left at the house the very same day was plainly directed to Mr. Livingston Perry. Now, Marjory Perry had no excuse whatever to open it, for she saw plainly how it was addressed. But she opened it nevertheless, and to her surprise she felt a jealous pang.

She hesitated over it for half an hour, but finally decided to inspect the contents. It began "Dear Sir." She caught her breath as she read on.

"We have made a faithful investigation of your wife's career for the last ten years and have got one of the finest cases we ever worked up. Nothing whatever is lacking to make it complete. We can furnish you with proofs of her flirtation at the age of fifteen with a school fellow."

"At sixteen she is said to have been infatuated with her music teacher. At seventeen she announced that she would marry a foreign tie or never wed, as we can prove by witnesses."

"From her eighteenth year," continued the report, "she has been noted for extravagances. Some of her hats cost $100, and she bought one last week that cost $75."

"As early as her sixth year her terrible temper appeared. At that age she is known to have threatened to set fire to the house. It can be shown by three different servants that she once tried to send the butler to buy a gun, although she was barely seven then."

The investigator then leaped lightly from her childhood to her girlhood again and wrote: "She has repeatedly been heard to say that no husband could rule her and that she would have her way about things or make things hot for a mile square. She has also been heard to say that all bullying husbands should be drowned."

"When you first came on the scene and began paying your addresses to her she pronounced you a dunny. The butler will make affidavit to this. It was her mother that brought about the match. She told the daughter that she could run away afterward if she didn't like your antics. Her maid will make two or more affidavits to this."

"We have also learned the important fact that she looked a long while into a gunsmith's window only a month ago, and there was a dangerous gleam in her eyes as she turned away. This point has a value that any keen lawyer will see at once. Any judge will charge the jury that this is a highly significant circumstance."

When Mrs. Perry had reached the end of this report she spread it out on the table without trying to conceal it, though it was not hers and had been feloniously opened by her. To her surprise and indignation one, two, three tears rolled down on her pretty little nose.

"Marjory, what does this mean?" demanded Livingston as he entered the room and placed the letter in her hand.

"And, Livingston, what does this mean?" she demanded as she pointed to the sheets on the table.

Five minutes were spent in exchanging and reading reports.

Then Livingston Perry said: "Marjory, I'm going out to horseplay the scoundrel who slandered you this way! I owe it to myself as your husband!"

"I wish I were a man as big and strong as you," responded Marjory.

"Why?" demanded Mr. Perry, taken aback.

"Because—because," said she. "I'd like to do the same thing to the man who made the report about you."

And people are still commenting on how long that honeymoon has lasted and saying that neither could have done better by looking the whole world over.

Supreme Judicial Court.

Court opened Monday and the trial of the suit of Charles F. Conwell vs. John A. Morse and Dr. R. R. Company was then begun. This is an action for damages placed at $15,000, for the loss of the plaintiff's saw and planing mill at East Portland, with an adjoining building or lean-to containing a pair of oxen, by fire alleged to have been set by sparks from a locomotive engine, Feb. 26, 1908.

Eighteen witnesses were called and sworn for the plaintiff, and thirteen were examined during the day. No one of them saw the mill take fire from the sparks of the locomotive engine, but several gave evidence of the passing of a freight train with sparks being emitted from the smokestack, and the alarm of being given shortly after, an appeared that approaching the railroad station at East Portland, in both directions, the grade was quite steep, and heavy trains "labored," puffed a great deal in reaching it especially from the west.

The actual loss was about $8,000. When the defendant's side of suit began ten witnesses were sworn. The testimony of all of the train men did not differ materially from that of the witnesses for the plaintiff. Seth M. Carter of Lewiston was the closing argument for the defense, and Fred V. Matthews, esq., of Portland for the plaintiff. After the clear and able charge of the Court, the case was given to the jury, which remained out until after court adjourned.

The jury finally agreed and rendered a verdict. On Wednesday morning they reported, giving judgment for a sum of little rising $7,000.

The case of Charles F. Conwell vs. John A. Morse et al. was the next case. The plaintiff lives in Hartford, Conn. defendants in Bath. This was an action of assumpsit for sawing lumber. The amount claimed is $207.32. The plaintiff is an owner of a portable saw mill. In August last it was in Georgetown, Me. The plaintiff worked there, as he states, 11 days, and sawed, as he says, 92,144 ft. of lumber in still where the plaintiff left it. The defendants refused to pay, and claim they never accepted the work.

Albert Duffy, alias Albert Morse, of Hallowell, indicted for breaking and entering and larceny, and Charles Randall, commorant of Paris, for a felonious assault were brought from the asylum for the insane at Augusta, where they have been under observation. The jury found them guilty of the offenses charged, and sentenced them to the State Prison for a term of one year each.

Henry Gauvin of Rumford, jail servant, indicted for breaking and entering, search and seizure, was brought into court Tuesday afternoon, and having pleaded guilty to maintaining a nuisance by a common seller of intoxicating liquors, to sell the same in this State in violation of law, was sentenced to the latter indictment to the payment of a fine of $100 and costs taxed at $10, and in default of payment to 60 days in jail. This sentence is to take effect at the expiration of the sentence he is now serving.

The following divorce was granted in the Cumberland County Court: Beatrice H. Newcomb vs. Harry S. Newcomb. Extreme cruelty and gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. Name changed to Beatrice Hayes, her maiden name. To pay $300 in lieu of alimony. Court adjourns, Thursday.

COURT ADJOURNS, THURSDAY.

AUTOMOBILE ROAD TEST.

Norristown, Pa., to Find Out How Motor Cars Affect Highways.

In resenting the imputation that automobiles are more harmful to improved highways than horse drawn vehicles Assemblyman Rex of Norristown, Pa., at the annual convention of supervisors the other day suggested that a practical test be made to demonstrate the relative wear and tear of both classes of vehicles on public roads.

He offered to contribute to the construction of such a road, which will be composed of two parallel highways exactly alike. Over one of these roads horse drawn vehicles are to pass and over the other the automobiles.

Detail in Dairy Business.

Dairying requires close attention to details. Any neglect of the cows or of the milk and butter must necessarily lead to losses—loss in the quality of the milk and butter and loss in the amount of milk which each cow may be expected to give if treated properly.

The cows must have their feed at regular intervals and of a quality and quantity adapted to their requirements, and they must be milked regularly. No slipshod method of dealing with the milk or cream is ever profitable. It should be separated or strained and set away to cool as soon as possible after milking and the cream churned when properly ripened and at the right temperature.

Any failure in any one of the details will affect the results to a more or less extent.

Silver Medal Milk.

The silver medal for market milk at the national dairy show was awarded to a dairy whose herd consisted of twenty-eight cows of mixed breeding, including Jersey, Holstein and Shorthorn grades. The barn is of frame, of ordinary type. The cows are fed a well balanced ration the year around. When the milk was produced for the contest the ration consisted of millet hay and corn stover, supplemented with corn and cob meal, dried brewers' grains and molasses feed. The milk was produced and handled in a cleanly manner, cooled and aerated immediately after being drawn and stored in spring water.

Exercise For the Ewes.

In order to insure a sufficient amount of exercise being taken, we feed our ewes in several large yards, which makes them travel back and forth a great deal, says a breeder. If an old pasture is near by, it is well to let them run out to it when the weather is mild and the snow is not too deep. This gives additional exercise, which is necessarily beneficial. Pure water and salt should, of course, be kept before the flock at all times; otherwise they will drink of stagnant water, which is sure to cause disease.

A CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to Dr. E. E. Wheeler, our local physician and Dr. J. G. Littlefield of South Paris, and Dr. J. B. Bradbury of Norway who made almost daily visits and Dr. Barnard of Norway, who made several visits, and Dr. Barker one and Dr. Stuart of South Paris one in my late severe sickness. At one time four of the above named physicians were at my bedside and through their united efforts and superior skill in the treatment of that dreaded disease, lobar pneumonia, so fatal with people of my age, equal to the best of the state, that like a brand it was snatched from the burning, and now at the age of 78 years I am convalescing. These words are inadequate to express the extreme gratitude that I feel for those noble doctors that have done so much for my recovery. Here I desire to express my appreciation for my trained nurse, Miss Gertrude Cravette of Portland, who so faithfully discharged every duty that contributed so much toward my recovery. To the many friends living at a distance, who have written so many kind letters of enquiry and sympathy, I am ever grateful. And to the many callers who have come with helpful and encouraging words and offered assistance; to all of those I extend my appreciation and sincere thanks.

Beautifying the Village.

L. C. Bates has been re-setting a lot of shade trees in different parts of the village that were killed last year by the drought, also a row of 20 or 25 on Pioneer street in front of the new houses he is building. Most of the new trees have been nursery stock.

L. W. Dana went to Portland, Friday, to visit relatives.

Henry Dunham is receiving several weekly visits from his daughter, Mrs. W. W. Widder of Hallowell, Mass.

It is Mrs. Carrie Marshall who is the nurse for Dr. O. K. Yates and not Nellie Marshall as was reported in last week's paper. The doctor is now gaining quite fast.

Wirt S. McKenney, who has been attending the Burdett Business college at Boston, has returned for the summer vacation.

Rev. L. W. Raymond was called to Dixfield to attend a funeral last week. He was away two or three days and attended two funerals while he was gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dunham of South Paris visited at Dr. Yates' last Sunday. Mrs. Dunham has been up every week to see her uncle since he has been sick.

Mrs. Alice E. Marshall went Friday to Hallowell on account of the severe illness of her daughter, Mrs. A. K. Baldwin who was threatened with pneumonia.

There was a Finnish wedding at the Free Baptist church, Saturday afternoon. A service was held and at the same place Sunday afternoon and Monday evening.

A little son was born May 12 to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kimball. This is the third son of Kimball family of seven children. His sister, Mrs. Evie Lappin is with her.

John Book and family have moved into the rest over Shaw & Martin's store for the summer and Mrs. Phila Davis is moving into her new purchase where Mr. Book's store was formerly located.

There were seven ministers in town last Sunday, three doing regular pastoral work; two others living here and two Finnish ministers, one from Boston and the other from Thomaston. The Finnish had a service at the Free Baptist church, making four denominational morning services. In the evening there was only one service on account of the rain and that at the Free Baptist church.

NEW KIND OF ROAD MATERIAL.

Salt and Alkali Scale From Boilers Used in Parts of Kansas.

The farmers in central Kansas as well as the people in the towns have been interested in good roads for several years, and in Ellsworth and its vicinity one can see almost any kind of a made road.

At one or two places in Ellsworth county there are short roads where treatment has been given similar to the pavement on Douglas avenue in Ellsworth. Here there are two blocks that are four-fifths of the way to the town. The treatment of this street was commenced about two or three years ago, consisting of coarse and fine cinders in layers, then a covering surface of salt and alkali scale.

The water in this country is very hard, and in all the steam boilers at the salt mills and other factories a sort of alkali forms which must be removed frequently, and this, with the salt and alkali scale that forms in the salt pans, is used on Douglas avenue. It forms a hard crust and makes a most impressive sight. The children first saw the most busy thoroughfare of Ellsworth, and if the supply was not so limited the farmers would use it for the rural roads where most of the streets of Ellsworth would be paved with it. The salt and alkali crust on Douglas avenue is now about three inches thick, and this lies on three inches of coarse cinders and three inches of fine cinders. It makes a pretty street, in appearance being like an asphalt pavement before it becomes dirty.

Cost of Oiling Roads.

A recently published report of the Boston park commission is interesting. In 1906 twelve miles of road were treated with oil to keep down the dust, and the result was so satisfactory that in 1907 the whole extent of more than forty miles was treated in this way. Mr. Putnam, the engineer, has carefully calculated the cost, and he says that the annual cost of sprinkling a thirty foot roadway was $489 and a mile, whereas the cost of oiling the same roadway thirty feet wide was $275.

In addition to laying the dust, the asphaltum in the oil has a blinding effect on the surface of the road and very materially lessened the cost for repairs. The oil is put on in an emulsion in which fifteen pounds of soap dissolved in fifty gallons of water are mixed with a hundred gallons of crude oil, the whole being agitated to the proper point of emulsion, and then 160 gallons of this are mixed with 450 gallons of water and sprinkled on the roads. The plan has given the very best satisfaction in Boston and might be tried elsewhere with corresponding satisfactory results.

A Move For Good Roads.

Nearly 1,000,000 voters of Pennsylvania have signed petitions asking the state legislature to start the movement which in 1913 will give a bond issue of $50,000,000 for building good roads. The sum of $5,000,000 will be asked for to begin immediate work.

22d Annual Meeting, W. C. T. U.

At West Paris.

Despite the inclemency of the weather the 22d annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union opened Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. in a very auspicious manner. As time went on it proved what it at first had promised, a very helpful and successful meeting throughout.

Nearly thirty visitors and delegates from the several unions came, who were cordially received at the train and at the church.

First on the program was a devotional service led by Mrs. Banghart of Bethel. The convention was then called to order by the county president, Mrs. E. A. G. Stickney of East Brownfield. The roll call was responded to by all of the executive officers and nearly all of the superintendents of departments.

A very cordial address of welcome was given by Rev. Isabella S. Macduff, pastor of the Universalist church in which the convention was held. She welcomed them to her church. She commended them for coming on a rainy day, it showed their earnestness in the cause, that a rainy day was too generally used as a sufficient excuse for absence from church services and things connected with church work, when in business or pleasure it would have no weight as such. She welcomed them in behalf of the local union, who would receive much good thereby.

Annie M. Barnes of Norway very heartily responded to it. She said that the greater good was gained if we come in the right spirit, a playful spirit, and suggested that one would gain strength in learning to repeat passages of Scripture. The president also responded and Miss Macduff added an afterthought. Mrs. Banghart rendered a very pretty solo.

The report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Emma V. Chandler, of Bethel, was very encouraging. All of the nine unions in the county had sent reports. Several had gained new members. South Paris was called the banner union for membership, having gained 87 now making their number 180. The total membership of the county is 325 and 19 honorary members. Nearly all had sent $2 to the Willard Memorial fund and contributed to the State work. Four unions prepared programs. Miss I. H. Stickney, who is State corresponding secretary, commended Mrs. Chandler for having the best corresponding secretary's report of all the counties in the State.

Mrs. Nellie F. Farnum of South Paris reported $112.50 now in the treasury and $27.50 left after State dues were paid. She always gives a praise-worthy report. Some reports of superintendents followed. Noonday prayer was offered by Mrs. Chandler. Soon after a good dinner was served in the dining hall beneath the chimes, where there is every accommodation and convenience seldom seen even in city churches.

The executive committee meeting reported the following officers suggested who will serve the coming year: Pres.—Mrs. E. A. G. Stickney, East Brownfield. V. Pres.—Mrs. Susie E. Chapman, South Paris. Cor. Sec.—Mrs. Emma V. Chandler, Bethel. Rec. Sec.—Mrs. O. M. Mason, Bethel. Treas.—Mrs. Nellie F. Farnum, South Paris.

It was suggested that an institute be held during the year. The afternoon session was opened by prayer by Mrs. Barnes.

White, vice president, Mrs. Anna W. White, took the chair while the president delivered a very helpful message. She mentioned the recent victory over the Resubmission struggle, also as lawyer Hastings and Asst. Attorney General Barnes, also spoke of the lead Maine has taken in prohibition sentiment, and deplored the interstate commerce law as it now stands. She told of the growing temperance sentiment of the nation, that every year more and more people and of the work among young people and children on educational lines, of the 21 departments taken up in this country and of the interesting institute at South Paris in March.

Mrs. Banghart sang a solo. Following was a very interesting hour of discussion of "What next in my union?" by local presidents, and a report of membership contests by Mrs. Annie Swett of South Paris.

Christine Tilling, an English young woman now of Norfolk, Va., gave a very interesting illustrated talk to the 70 scholars from the grammar and primary schools of the village, who marched with flags waving and were a very pretty and impressive sight. The children first sang a stirring prohibition song. Then a class of six little girls dressed in white bearing gilt stars surmounted on a wand decorated with a white ribbon bow, went on the platform and gave an exercise entitled "The meeting of the States," after which the chorus sang "Make the map all white."

After Miss Tilling's talk they sang America and marched out. The teachers and older scholars returned while Miss Tilling gave another talk on Temperance Instruction Teaching.

Rev. D. R. Ford of the M. E. church and Rev. L. W. Raymond of the F. B. church were introduced and gave hearty response.

The evening service opened with an anthem by the choir; Scripture by Rev. Miss Macduff; prayer by Rev. Mr. Ford; and the evening was by Miss Tilling, who spoke for an hour, many wishing to listen longer. She spoke of the W. C. T. U. educational system, of Maine's continual danger and fight as long as the liquor traffic is legalized by the State government, a description of England's curse as compared to this country, and many other interesting things too numerous to mention. There was a good address by the choir and a very pretty solo by Mrs. F. F. Farnum.

The evening service closed with an anthem by the choir and benediction by Miss Macduff.

Wednesday morning the devotional exercises were led by Rev. I. S. Macduff. Some interesting reports from the various superintendents were given.

The Memorial service was led in a most impressive manner by Mrs. Chandler with appropriate music. Mrs. F. F. Lovejoy of Bethel had a large display of temperance literature in the church parlour and advocated the enlargement of the subscription lists of the three temperance organs, the Young Crusader for the children and The Star in the East, the State paper.

The afternoon was filled in with the question, What constitutes an Ideal, by the local president, Mrs. E. A. G. Stickney, secretary, Miss I. H. Stickney; local treasurer, Mrs. Nellie F. Farnum. The remaining business was enacted and the convention closed with music.

The leading feature in the music was Mrs. Banghart of Bethel, who is a very fine soloist, and rendered occasional songs throughout the whole convention.

Webster's Presence of Mind.

Once when Daniel Webster was addressing a political meeting in Faneuil hall the standing multitude within the hall, pressed by those who were endeavoring to enter from without, he began to sway to and fro, a solid mass of human bodies, as helpless to counteract the movement as if Faneuil hall were being rocked by an earthquake. The orator was in the midst of a stirring appeal, urging the necessity of individual exertion and undiminished patriotism to avert the dangers that threatened the republic.

When he perceived the terrible swaying of the packed assembly and the imminent danger that might ensue, Webster stopped short in the middle of a sentence, advanced to the edge of the platform, extended his arm in an authoritative attitude and, in a stentorian voice of command, cried out, "Let each man stand firm!" The effect was instantaneous. Each man stood firm, the great, heaving mass of humanity regained its equilibrium, and, save the long breath of relief that filled the hall, perfect stillness ensued. "That," exclaimed the great orator, "is what we call self government!"

AT LIMEKILN CLUB

President Gardner Talks to Members on the Swagger Set.

BARBER SHINBONE'S UNDOING

Why He Went Bankrupt—What Happened to Waydown Bebee and Others Who Wanted to Be the Real Things in Society.

[Copyright, 1909, by T. C. McClure.]
"My frens," said Brother Gardner as he rose up in the Limekiln club the other evening, "I have been lookin' around de hall for de last half hour to see de face of Brudder Shinbone Brown, but it am not yere. I didn't hardly s'pect it would be yere. Brudder Shinbone was taken into dis club a year ago. He made his first appearance among us wid a swallertail coat on, and he left his plug hat and gold headed cane in de ante-room. It needed but one look at Brudder Shinbone to tell us dat he was swagger. "While I didn't welcome de brudder with effusion, I didn't show no hostility. While I am agin swagger folks, I was willin' to gin him a fair show."

"COULD HE AFFORD TO BE SWAGGER?"

He has had dat show. Doodin' de year I could have criticised him on various occasions, but I held my peace. I knowed what must come, and I waited for it. What was to come has come. "My frens, Brudder Shinbone am not in de hall tonight. He am not at home tonight. He am not in de city tonight. I can't 'actly locate de spot on which his foot am restin', but it am fur, fur away. I don't want to make any mystery of my words, and so I will plainly inform you dat Brudder Shinbone has skipped—skated—struck de pike."

"Some of you know why, and some of you will ask why. De explanation am easy. De brudder belonged to de swagger set. He had a box at de postoffice, and his wife gin high teas. He wore a plug hat, and his wife had a b'arskin rug on de parlor floor. He belonged to a poker club, and his wife ordered ice cream for every Sunday dinner. If a ten, twenty and thirty cent Shakespearean play come along you allus found 'em in de thirty cent seats."

"Brudder Shinbone was a barber at $12 a week salary and no tips. Could he afford to be swagger? I figgered it out and said no; he figgered it out and said yes. He went ahead and tried it, and de result am dat he has fled de town a bankrupt. His household goods have been seized for debt, his wife am lookin' for washin' to do, and de swagger bizness am busted higher'n a kite. I am not rejoiced over it. I am holdin' it up as an object lesson."

"One of de oldest members of dis club am Waydown Bebee. Up to six months ago he was as steady as an old sawmill. If anybody had dun told us dat he would ever make a ass of hisself we would have laughed de imputation to scorn. He aimed $10 a week, and de only amusement he was guilty of was gwine to de circus once a year. Six months ago his brudder in Gawgia died and left him $250 in cash. When dat money got yere I wanted to take Waydown aside and talk to him, but he wouldn't be tooked. He seemed to know what I was gwine to say, and he dodged me. Some others started in to advise, but dey didn't git fur."

"No use axin' if Brudder Waydown am yere tonight. I know he ain't. I know dat he am sittin' in his lonely cabin wid his head tied up in a wet towel to ease de achin' throbs, and it may be dat we shall nebbber see him yere ag'in. Yes, sittin' all alone by hisself, and once in awhile he fetches a groan like a dyin' hoss. For six months Brudder Waydown went in for de swagger life. He jined clubs; he went to de races; he wore patent leathers; he bought a diamond pin; he promanaded up and down in front of banks. At home it was gilt clocks, lace curtains and brick ice cream. De Bebee family cut a swath. Dey reached de pinnacle."

The De Bebee Family.

"My frens, dar am people who reach de pinnacle to stay up dar. Dar am others who reach it to take one look around and den fall backward head over heels and come down wid an awful thump. De Bebee family reached it to come down. Mebbe you heard de thump a week ago. I has told you whar Brudder Waydown is, but whar am Mrs. Bebee? She helped her husband to swagger. She liked it. She took de fall from de pinnacle wid him, but she got right up and run away wid another man, a man wid mo' swagger to him. Yes, she's gone, and Brudder Waydown may groan like two dyin' hosses, and it won't bring her back. "You may sarch under de stove and all de benches and stools in de hall and you won't find Brudder Comealong Johnsons tonight. You can't find a man in Paradise hall who am forty miles away and still gwine ober de dirt road at fo' miles an hour. What's happened? you ax. Nuffin much—nuffin but dat same swagger bizness. Brudder Comealong blacked stoves and did whitewashin'. Sometimes he aimed $8 a week, sometimes $112. He had de reputashun of bein' level headed. He was nebbber known to go to de theater, and de man wid rugs to sell on de installment plan called at his cabin fo' hundred times a year and couldn't make a sale. On mo' dan twenty different occasions I have held Brudder Comealong up as a safe man to follow."

"Vaal, what's happened? Three months ago he found a passel of papers in de street, and de loser rewarded him wid $300 in cash. "We all knowed it, and we all complimented him. Didn't seem to be a case for advice. Nobody doubted dat de brudder would make de best sort of use of dat money. We was all lookin' to hear dat he had bought a Texas ile well and doubled his capital when de surprise cum. He walked in yere one night and presented sich a picture of gorgeousness dat some of us might faint away. I can't remember all he had on, but he was splendid. We wasn't hardly tech him wid de tips of our fingers. Instead of buyin' an ile well or a silver mine he had started in to be swagger. It was hard to credit at first, but we soon found it was so."

"It hain't much use in gwine ober de perticklers. It was plug hats and gold headed canes and high teas and theater parties till de bump come. De bump allus comes, and it generally comes mighty sudden. In dis case de landlord, de butcher, de grocer, de ice cream man, de coal man and six or eight other creditors arrived and pulled de bell at de same time, and fifteen minits later de tragedy had been played. De swagger bizness had taken a skate. Mrs. Johnsons was lyin' in a dead faint on de floor, and Brudder Comealong was headin' south-west by compass p'int. Nobody kin say if he will eber return."

He Condemns White's Undoing.

"One mo' case. We took into dis yere club two years ago a humble man by de name of Nicodemus White. He was gentle and mild. He was industrious and savin'. If he couldn't aim $2 a day he tried to aim one, and his wife went out washin' to help things along. No frills on dat family. Jest went right along like an old fashioned clock, alius dere and alius to be depended on. If any one had suggested to Brudder White to rent a postoffice box or attend a vaudeville show he'd have almost fallen dead in his tracks. Ober and ober I said to myself dat he was a man to tie to and dat his advice and example would alius be good."

"Den comes de surprise. In diggin' a cellar he finds a glass can wid $200 in gold in it. We was all of us prepared to hear dat he had mince pie extra for breakfast next mornin', but not for what actually followed. De White family jest run wild. Dey galloped and cantered and cavorted. Dey figgered dat dar could be no end to dat money. Dey reveled in gilt clocks and fried oysters and rode in taxicabs, and dey was beatin' de Rothschilds all holler when de bump stepped in. Nuffin left of dat gorgeousness today—no home, no furniture, no job. Cleaned up and cleaned out, wid de hull family threatenin' suicide. Dey have had their swagger and am payin' de penalty."

"My frens, don't do it. Dar am some games you kin beat wid buttons or peanuts, but de swagger game is one dat takes money. You've got to have it or de bump will come. Let's break de meetin' in two and go home and think it ober."

WEST PORTER.

Sort of Creepy.

Monday, the 10th, Joshua Libby while attending to his work with his team came in contact with a large black snake. With the aid of a small boy, Willie Libby, to look after his team while he went back to the house after his gun, some one hundred and fifty rods, he shot the snake. Mark Sawyer came along at the time and measured the snake, which was 6 feet and 7 inches long. In about twenty minutes on his return to the house he shot the second one and he was quite crabbled and did not care about leaving this earth. They were about the same size. The black snake seems to make its home in the pasture of R. Libby in the lower lot so called, and the Rice field for the last few years. # Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Red Banks, Miss.—"Words are inadequate to express what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from a female disease and weakness which the doctors said was caused by a fibroid tumor, and I commenced to think there was no help for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman after all other means had failed. My friends are all asking what has helped me so much, and I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Willie Edwards.

Hampstead, Maryland.—"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and could not be on my feet half a day without suffering. The doctors told me I never would be well without an operation, but Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors, and I hope this valuable medicine may come into the hands of many more suffering women."—Mrs. Joseph H.
Dandy.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful
—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine.
Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge.
Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Supreme Judicial Court.

The slander case of Deputy Sheriff
Elliot vs. Matthew McCarthy, Esq., was on trial two days and went to the jury Friday afternoon.

The charge of Judge Savage to the jury was one of the clearest, most learned and impartial. Neither side asked for special instructions. Among other things the Court said, in substance:

It is not enough for the defendant in justification of the statements made that the plaintiff committed the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, that he was inefficient. It is not enough for him to show that he failed to act, but that he intentionally and corruptly did so. His acts must be such that they constitute a crime. It is not enough to show that the defendant was "wide open" at the period alluded; that liquors were being sold. It must be brought home to the plaintiff, and that he conspired at their sale. He had no authority to search on the 11th of September 1907, for he had no warrant for the purpose. He could seize but could not search without a warrant. An officer swears in making a complaint on search and seizure process
that he believes intoxicating liquors
were deposited and left for illegal sale. If for any cause he does not so believe, he is not justified in making the complaint.
On the second part of the defense set up by the defendant, the Court charged that if he honestly believed the statements he made were true and that he had no malice in making them, then he would not be liable.
On this part of the charge the jury
after being out several hours, asked for further instructions, and on retiring to their room about 7 o'clock sealed their verdict and came out.
Saturday morning the jury reported a verdict for the defendant. The plaintiff promptly filed a motion for a new trial and the case will now be taken to the law court.

Drunkard, Mysterious Disappearance of a Beautiful Girl, and David Hayes, has been bitten by a mad dog. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes went from here about a year ago to Panama, where they have since resided. They have brought their little son to a hospital in New York for treatment.

Frank P. Cole, manager of the spool mill got a snaking up the past week.
Mr. Cole was riding on one of the heavy teams and in some way the horse became frightened, throwing Mr. Cole to the ground, his head struck on a rock and caused Mr. Cole to become unconscious.
Outside of a little lameness, he is all right at present.

Song birds are reported as unusually numerous this spring, both in number and varieties. This is good news to the nature lover. There is a law which forbids the killing of these birds, which should be rigidly enforced.

ROAD WORK IN ENGLAND.

Method of Maintaining Highways and Filling Up Soft Spots.

It may interest many to learn how road maintenance is carried out in Great Britain and Ireland. All roads and bridges are under the direct charge of the county surveyor, who is in all cases a qualified civil engineer, with assistants under him to see to the detail work. He divides the roads of the county into sections, as seems best to him, for maintenance purposes.
These several sections are advertised locally in the newspapers and by other means, and bids are invited for their maintenance for six or twelve months,
says James Johnston of Douglas county, Neb., in the Breeder's Gazette of Chicago. These bids are opened on a certain day by a board of county commissioners, assisted by the county surveyor. The lowest bidder gets the work, but no bid is accepted until the successful bidder puts up a bond signed by two solvent sureties that the work will be performed. Should the contractor fail to do the work and sue the bondsmen for the work and costs. All bidders for this work have specifications of the work to be done in the several sections of road. How long the section is, how many tons of metal are to be broken and put on,
cleaning, keeping the water tables
clear and the grass off the road—all these are specified, so that he knows exactly what he has to do. The matter of putting on the metal is looked after very closely indeed. The contractor has to put all the material on the roadside. The surveyor or his assistant comes and measures it and then marks it with slaked lime, so that it cannot be interfered with until it is put on the road. Farmers are always the contractors for this work.
The roads everywhere are always in good condition. There are many soft spots over there—bog and low lands,
with rain every day and sometimes twenty-four hours at a time—but the heaviest autos can spin along the bog roads and in the rainiest weather with no damage to the road.

They have no difficulty with the soft bottoms in Ireland. They simply throw in rock, and the softer the spot the bigger the rocks, until they make it a hard spot and then put the small stuff on top. A mistake will surely be made if bricks are thrown into soft spots. They are simply no good for the purpose intended.

It is to be hoped that the people of the United States will stop spending time and wasting money in shoveling dirt into the soft spots, but will go to work like men of business and build roads.

To Walk Gracefully.

To walk gracefully the ball of the foot must be put down first and the toes pointed out. This angle makes it possible to "step away" in the sense of lightness.

More ankle action is required to walk correctly than is realized by many persons for unless that joint moves easily the gait inevitably is flat footed, as the whole comes in contact simultaneously with the floor, giving a heavy and lumbering movement highly suggestive of "crutch."

It is to be understood that unless the shoulders are well thrown back and the chest expanded a graceful walk is impossible, so it is necessary to properly distribute the weight to make a correct balance, and this is done only by permitting the shoulders in position, by permitting the lower part of the torso to be unduly prominent.

The spine must be straight, yet a lean forward, so slight as not to be perceptible, is essential, otherwise the abdomen is incorrectly placed. The lean is not from the shoulders or waist, but from the hips, and the shoulders, thrown back, counterbalance any tendency to tipping forward.

Remembering the importance of holding the body correctly, attention may be given to the feet and should there be a sensation of awkwardness in trying to place the foot so the ball is first to touch the ground, some light exercise should be practiced. One of these is to cross the feet, so that one is entirely removed from the floor, and twist it forward, back and around, being certain the work is done from the ankle joint and not from the knee. It should not be needed to add that no boots or shoes are to be worn while doing this work. Another movement is to point the foot extremely, making as straight a line as may be from the toe to the heel. While in that position the toe is moved in semi-circular form as far around as it can go without being painful.

When stiffness of the joints makes the exercise painful relief may be secured by first rubbing the ankles with a mixture of one ounce of rose water, a gill of white brandy, four ounces of mutton tallow, two ounces of olive oil, one and one-half ounces of virgin wax and half of one grain of musk.

The wax and tallow are melted in a cup set into a pan of hot water and as they soften the oil is added. The cup is removed from heat and the brandy and rose water, already mixed, are very slowly poured in, beating all the time. The musk goes in last, sure an exact quantity. Shoes naturally affect the gait and it is a mistake to think that high heels are necessarily injurious. When a woman has an arched instep she has more support from heels than that kind of foot. Flat ones and walking becomes much easier, but a flat-footed person wearing high heels cannot help awkwardness.

The Wisdom of "John."

The destruction still goes on as it has been going, man—"fool man"—will have to squint poison to the end of time. "Johnnie must get a gun" as soon as he is out of swaddling clothes. He teases pa, and pa is indulgent, and Johnnie gets his gun, after which he is a different person. A gun is no good unless he can kill something. Hide! Little bird! For here comes Johnnie with his new gun. Too late. Your song is hushed, and Johnnie is proud of his gun and his marksmanship. But Johnnie must own a gun if the skies and the larks fall. The indulgent father buys shells with one hand and squirts poison with the other, and thinks he is a man of sense. Perhaps he is, but he doesn't look it.

Ryder, Rumford, Rev. W. E. McWhorter, South Paris, and W. S. Alford, Lovell, vice-presidents; C. H. Holman, Bethel, secretary and treasurer.

The annual convention of the East Oxford Local Union, Y. P. S. O. E., was held at the Congregational church at the same time and in connection with the Sunday school meetings, these officers were elected:—Rev. S. E. Lewis, president; Rev. W. E. McWhorter, vice president; Miss Taylor, South Paris, secretary; and J. G. Fisher, Mexico, treasurer.

It was voted that future conventions of these two bodies should be held separately, and it is quite probable that the next year's convention may be held in South Paris. Among the speakers at the two conventions were Rev. Bernard Christopher, Canton, H. E. Lufkin, general secretary, Rev. W. E. McWhorter, Rev. C. B. McCollie of Madison, Rev. J. G. Fisher, Mexico, Dr. Buck and Mr. Bowesfield, a returned missionary from China.

Which do you think won?

Not long ago two men, athletes, went into a contest to see which could stand erect and hold his arms stretched out full length at either side of his body for the longer time. One man had fed on steaks and chops, sausage, ham, roast beef, etc.; the other ate heartily, but confined himself to such foods as Quaker Oats, rice, macaroni, etc. Which do you think held out longer?

The first man lasted twenty-two minutes. The Quaker Oats-macaroni-rice chap concluded to stop after he had been a. it more than three hours.

There's more strength and economy in eating lots of Quaker Oats than most people imagine.

Every family should eat plentifully of Quaker Oats at least once every day; breakfast is the best time. It strengthens you for the day.

The regular size package sells for 10c; the big family size package costs 25c; the same package with a piece of fine china in it in addition to the Quaker Oats, costs 30c. Grocers sell all of these.

Wealth and Uprightness.

It is a self-evident fact, and as we look out over the world today, we see it demonstrated, that wealth while it may give social standing, does not necessarily improve character nor promote happiness. To this end, it is evident, other agencies beside wealth are important and need to be said, it is soul, and the will-power for good?

Holy Writ refers to this fact, of the lust of riches drowning, or barring out the virtues so numerous, and all-important to the welfare of humanity.

While large incomes and ready cash are important and indeed indispensable to happiness, and are conducive toward attaining a higher standard of living, yet, it is not the only thing necessary. There are other things to be considered quite as important, and even more so—as the saying goes—there is a good deal to everything.

A person possessing a goodly amount of cash on hand with a questionable character or brain-power, is not independent nor above criticism, neither is he superior to the person with upright character and keen insight with less cash.

We must give wealth, however, like everything else, its proper rating, remembering always that it is better to be limited to small incomes and be wise and true to possess great wealth with ignorance and credulity.

So, while wealth honestly gained should not be under-estimated it also should not be over-rated. Money sometimes takes to itself wings.

Often a person aspires to the acquisition of wealth, striving with heart and hand yet fails to reach the goal, through conditions over which he has no control.

The desire for riches to be used for mental development, character-building and the promotion of any good cause, for our own prosperity and the good of the world is the standpoint from which to wield the right hand of power.

Finally, when the last summons comes that calls all to the Great Beyond, at the last moment we will not ask for gold but, "what have I done for my advancement and for the good of others, and the glory of God which will insure me a passport to the world beyond—the life beyond life."

Therefore we maintain that riches are opposed to uprightiness so far as they conflict with these obligations, inasmuch as it is written, "The love of money is the root of all evil," and "How hardly can a rich man enter into the kingdom of heaven."

JENNIE E. SNOW KIMBALL.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Mingling of the Beautiful and Useful.

The last crop of Bear Mountain Grange was an ideal example of what has been often described as what it, and all meetings of the order of Patrons ought always to be. Some of us are constitutionally unable to appreciate the true meaning and value of the classical phrase, "utroque": the mingling of the useful with the beautiful and agreeable things of our every-day lives.

Some of us are inclined to affect the character of that inimitable creation in the kitchen, and become Grange-grinders; always sticking for "facts" and the solid, and indispensable items of our social and business transactions; depreciating or ignoring the beneficial quality of the sentimental, and all those wonderful expression of the highest development of our nature called art, whether in the domain of music, painting or literature.

Thus, if brother H. or brother G. leaves off attending the grange meetings because the program is partly devoted to light entertainments and occasional festive accompaniments to delight the taste for sweet things, he is confessing his inability to estimate the needs of the average person in the matter of variety in the exercise of our own mental talents, whether discussing the prosaic subjects pertaining to farm culture, or listening to the charming vocal renditions of our gifted sisters in musical and elocutionary selections: the Sisters being supposed to represent the two thirds or more of the intellectual contingent of the grange.

But, returning to the incidents of the last meeting, we were glad to see worthy Master Sanderson in his official chair, after a late period of illness. Sister Belle Haggood performed the duties of Lecturer, protegee very efficiently, and presented a program of unusual interest.

The first part consisted of readings and recitations by Sisters Lizzie Pike, Edith Millett, Jennie Haynes, Clara Hamilton, and Brother C. S. Hamilton, interspersed by several fine choruses by the grange choir, accompanied by Sister Jennie Sanderson.

The second article of the program was a discussion of the question: "What is the best time to plant potatoes?" This was ably discussed by a number of members, of well known experience in the culture of field crops. A brief report of the remarks is as follows:

Bro. George Miller believes in planting potatoes quite late, and expressed a preference for a sprouting fertilizer of poultry manure to commercial fertilizers.

Bro. W. K. Hamlin plants his potatoes about the middle of May, and uses a high grade of fertilizer; also uses ashes. He selects large and perfectly grown tubers for planting. He quoted a saying of the late James M. Shaw, which contained, he believed, an important principle as a guide in the selection of seed: "The seed that is in the potato is a valuable element of the crop of the young plant." So he cuts his tubers into long pieces for seeds.

Bro. Osro Decker practices thorough cultivation of the ground before planting; uses large potatoes for seedling, and a general quantity of fertilizer, and selects fair sized potatoes, cut down to two eyes to the piece. Usually plants from 15th to 20th of May. Goes over ground with weeder before plants come up.

Bro. L. J. Saunders would use old ground for potatoes, and use commercial fertilizer, not ashes. Plant deep and keep covered at late as convenient.

Bro. S. C. Hamlin planted last year the middle of June: was not troubled by bugs or any other pests. On Oct. 1, 250 bushels to the acre.

Bro. Freeman Haggood does not favor planting whole seeds; would always cut tubers into good sized pieces, as they come up better. Someone said: "If your potatoes are scabby, you cannot safely plant on the same ground for seven years."

Bro. Geo. Rice thinks the way to avoid blight is to plant potatoes early.

Bessie Hamlin returned this week from a week of visiting in Boston and Waltham.

Robbins Longley, who has had a prolonged spell of illness this spring, is recovered sufficiently to do quite a lot of work.

Mrs. Augusta Young visited her daughter Blanche a few days since, who is a student at Shaw's Business College in Portland.

Mrs. Augusta Monroe returned to her home last week, after four months absence, visiting relatives in Springfield, Mass. and vicinity.

Bessie Hamlin has had extensive alterations and repairs made to the older part of her dwelling house by which several valuable improvements have been effected. The carpenter work and plastering were done by William Kingman and the painting by Robbins Plummer.

Frank Stearns is building a barn.

Edna Haynes is working in Portland.

Several from this place attended the K. of P. ball at Stoneham, Thursday night.

Annie Abbott has typhoid fever. It is believed to be caused by drinking impure water from their well, or from the spring back of the schoolhouse.

Wilson of Hiram, whose life was threatened recently by an insane man, is well known in Sweden where he was reared, and in Waterford where he has taught school and is well remembered and thought much of as a teacher, and friend, some of whom have met him quite recently in his pleasant home where he now resides.
